Libraries Launch Lucky Day Collection

Are you No. 183 on the waiting list for the newest book from your favorite author? With the launch of Wake County Public Libraries' Lucky Day Collection, you may be able to skip the line and check out that new book today.

How does it work? Look for the display of popular titles with special "Lucky Day Collection" stickers the next time you visit your local library. Books are available on a first-come, first-served basis and have a checkout period of 14 days. To help spread the luck and maintain a healthy supply of available titles, the books cannot be renewed or placed on hold.

Additional copies of bestsellers have been purchased to make up the Lucky Day Collection, and new titles will be added monthly to increase your chance of finding high-demand titles.

So how do you get your hands on one of the books in this new collection? Bypassing the long waiting list is as easy as visiting the library. Today could be your lucky day!

For more information, contact your local public library or visit our website.
